

Semyon Friedman – cello

Music Society of Lincoln Center, and was featured with Leon Fleisher and the late Virgil Thomson in the PBS documentary, "Baton."

Whose artistry was hailed by the New York Times as a "moving balance of delicacy and power," is recognized as one of today's premier cellists and chamber musicians. He has twice won first prize at the Concert Artists Guild International Competition in New York, once as a member of the Bowdoin Trio and the other as a soloist. Mr. Fridman was also selected by Musical America as "outstanding artist of the year." Fridman has appeared as concerto soloist with the Baltimore Symphony and Kiev State Philharmonic. In recital and chamber music concerts, he has performed in most major concert halls including Carnegie Hall, Alice Tully Hall, the Kennedy Center, the Library of Congress and many international halls.

Mr. Fridman made his critically acclaimed New York debut at Merkin Concert Hall, has been a frequent guest with the Chamber